

This month we have the pleasure of interviewing Elisabetta, Head Analyst by Financial Technologies.

Betty, after 7 years spent in FT, what do you think is the most substantial difference between FT and the majority of other international M&A Advisors?

“Although almost all M&A Advisors range today from one sector to another (pharma, automotive, IT, etc.) in a fairly cross way, as we also do in FT, our distinctive feature is represented by our smart approach of combining sound and certified methodology with thinking outside the box approach. This attitude becomes more and more crucial, especially when we have to deal with oversea transactions involving Chinese counterparts. No books tell you how to deal with such situations. That’s a challenging environment where experience is needed, and I like this!”
